

AMERICANS ADD TO TEAM TOTAL IN WORLD GAMES

Upset of Day Came in the Defeat of Hahn in 800 Meter Race

Olympic Stadium, Amsterdam, July 31.—(AP)—American hopes for decisive Olympic conquest received another jarring set back today in the decisive defeat of Lloyd Hahn in the classic 800 meter championship, although the wearers of the red, white and blue shield were able to hold their own by winning two of the four final events on the day's program.

The 800 meter crown went back to England to the tune of the flying feet of Douglas Lowe, the defending champion, with Hahn no better than fifth and with two other Americans last; but Eddie Hamm, the great Georgia Tech broad jumper, won his specialty for Uncle Sam, replacing as champion the American Negro, Othello Hubbard, who was eliminated in the second trials. In both of these events Olympic records fell.

Chicago Girl Wins

In the other two finals, both of which were for women athletes, the United States also gained an even break. A fast stepping Chicago lass, Elizabeth Robinson of the Illinois Women's A. C., ran away with the 100 meters championship in the fast time of 12 1-5 seconds and Lillian Copeland of the Pasadena, California, Athletic & Country Club placed second to Halina Konopacka of Poland in the discus throw.

Both Miss Robinson's 12 1-5 for the hundred and Miss Konopacka's remarkable discus throw of 39.62 meters were announced as new world records. Miss Konopacka's record is the equivalent of 129 feet and 11 1-2 inches.

Ed Hamm of the American team won the broad jump, setting a new Olympic record.

Five record performances—three world's and two Olympic—marked this third day's Olympic competition. Hamm in the broad jump and Lowe in the 800 meters accounted for Olympic standards but it took an American girl, Miss Robinson to set a world's mark in regaining some of the sprint laurels the men had lost. She beat two Canadians and a German, while the Polish girl who won the discus throw also turned in the best performance ever recorded by a woman.

Great Hurdle Race

G. C. Weightman-Smith, South African hurdler, broke the world's 110 meter record in a semi-final heat after two Americans, Elighton Dye and Stephen Anderson had equalled the old mark in two previous semi-finals. The South African stepped the barriers in 14 3-5 seconds, beating the mark set in 1920 by Earl Thomson. John Collier of the United States was second.

Hamm's Olympic record-breaking broad jump was 25 feet 3-4 inches or 7.73 meters. This was about five inches better than his nearest rival, S. P. Cator of Haiti, who was second. Al Bates of the United States was third with 24 feet 4 1-4 inches.

The United States continued increasing its team total, showing an aggregate of 71 points for the eight men's finals contested thus far. Other totals were Great Britain 29, Sweden 21, Germany 18 and Finland 17.

Find Wrecked Motorcycle

Boys who were playing Monday afternoon in Lover's Lane, east of the city, discovered a motorcycle hidden behind a dense growth of bushes and reported the matter to the sheriff's office and Deputy Sheriff Fred Richardson and State Highway Officer Lenox went to the scene and investigated the machine.

It was found that vandals had practically demolished the motorcycle which was 1927 model of the Harley Davidson make. Many of the parts were rendered useless as if they had been battered with a heavy hammer and the machine could not be used under its own power. Two rain coats and several cartons which had contained candy bars and cigarettes were lying about the wrecked machine. It was believed that the motorcycle had been stolen and driven to near Dixon, where it was wrecked, the license plates being removed and hidden and the machine abandoned. It was hauled to a local garage while a further investigation is being conducted.

Lime Thrown in Eyes of Girl Last Night

Miss Delia Eddy, 14 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Eddy, who reside west of Dixon, narrowly escaped losing the sight of both eyes in a very unusual manner last evening about 8 o'clock while she was playing with smaller children at the Singer ball field, when unexpectedly and unbeknown to her, Bobbie Gallagher ran up behind her and threw a handful of slacked lime in her face. Most of the powder struck her squarely in the eyes and for some time she was completely blinded.

After receiving first aid treatment she was taken to the office of a physician where the lime was washed out of her eyes and returned to her home. This morning it was reported that she was able to see with her left eye, but the right eye, in which a much larger quantity of the lime was thrown, was in a bad condition. The lime was contained in a sack and was

TO CONFER WITH LEADERS OF FARM INTERESTS SOON

Hoover to Attend Big Meeting in Cedar Rapids in Aug.

Chicago, July 31.—(AP)—A conference between the Republican presidential nominee, Herbert Hoover, and representatives of the farm relief sentiment in Iowa and other midwest states has been arranged for August 22 and 23 at Cedar Rapids, Ia., it has been announced at western campaign headquarters here.

James W. Good, western campaign manager for Mr. Hoover, said in making the announcement that "the real problem now is in meeting the Iowa farmers."

The Republican nominee, Mr. Good states, would make "no public addresses in Cedar Rapids, but would devote his time to conferences with farm leaders who have sought to discuss the agricultural situation with him."

Dates for the conferences were fixed to coincide with Mr. Hoover's return to the village of his birth, West Branch, Iowa, where he is to speak August 21.

Leaders in the fight for farm relief during recent years will be asked to attend the Cedar Rapids conference, Mr. Good said, so that the Republican nominee may have the benefit of their views in the shaping of a farm program that will prove acceptable.

It was indicated that representatives of the Corn Belt Committee, which has for its aim the improvement of agriculture conditions, would be invited to take part in the conference.

Ogle Co. Farm Home Destroyed by Fire

(Telegraph Special Service)

Polo, Ill., July 31.—The two story farm house on the farm of Mrs. Alma Shaw near the Pines state park, was destroyed by fire at an early hour this morning, only the furniture on the lower floor being saved by neighbors who responded to the calls for help. The origin of the fire, which was discovered about 2 o'clock by Mrs. Shaw's son, Burt, who was awakened by the smoke in his room and found his bed on fire, is not known. It started in the attic and rapidly spread through the house, making salvage of any furniture on the upper floor impossible. The loss is covered by insurance.

BROOKLYN MAN'S MURDERERS NEAR ARREST, REPORT

Weapons Used to Kill Yale Were Shipped from Capone Arsenal

New York, July 31.—(AP)—Police announced today that they had positive information that the weapons with which Frankie Yale, Brooklyn gangster, was shot to death in a quiet Brooklyn street, came from the arsenal of "Scarface" Al Capone, Chicago racketeer.

The history of the weapons, a machine gun, a shot gun and a magazine pistol, was revealed, it was said, during a conference today between District Attorney Dodd of Brooklyn, Police Inspectors Sullivan and Coughlin, Parker A. Henderson, Jr., son of a former Mayor of Miami, Fla., and Police Chief Reeve of Miami.

Yale, or Uale, was shot down on July 1 as he sat at the wheel of his automobile near his Brooklyn home, by gangsters who drove past in another car. The weapons used by the killers were found later in an abandoned automobile bearing a Tennessee license.

Framed an Alibi

Yale was said by the police to have been associated with Capone but to have broken with him some time before the killing. Henderson and Chief Reeve arrived in New York last night and considerable mystery was thrown about their presence.

Police said that they learned today that the guns had been purchased in Chicago and shipped to Capone in Miami. Police said they also learned that at least four Chicago gunmen had been in conference with Capone in his Miami home shortly after the shipment of the weapons.

It was said, after leaving Capone, the gunmen made a point of showing the tickets to various railroad employees and other persons in Florida.

This exaggerated display of tickets to Chicago, police said, was an obvious manufacture of an alibi. Instead of traveling to Chicago, it was asserted, the gunmen came directly to New York, arriving shortly before the slaying. Police said the gunmen were instructed at Miami to "get Yale". Detectives announced that they soon hope to have these gunmen under arrest on a charge of murder.

MENDOTA MAN IS FATALLY INJURED BY FREIGHT TRAIN

Mystery Surrounds the Death of Roscoe Turner Sunday

Mendota—Struck by a southbound Burlington freight train about 10 p. m. Saturday, Roscoe J. Turner, 41-year-old Mendota resident, died at 3:30 a. m. Sunday in the Harris hospital as the result of his injuries.

Turner was found lying along the tracks of the railroad by employees of the concern after the passage of the freight train, but details of the accident were lacking. He was unable to tell authorities how he was struck and the crew in charge of the train made no report, apparently having failed to see the man.

His right leg was severed below the knee, the left kneecap was torn away and there was a fracture of the skull.

The man, it was said, had spent the greater part of Saturday at the Burlington depot where he had talked with Ed Baker, one of the trainmen. Shortly before the southbound freight passed through Mendota, Turner left the depot.

Employees, who were about the yards, found Turner lying along the rails after the train had left. He was rushed to the Harris hospital where he lingered until 3:30 a. m. Sunday when he died.

A coroner's jury in charge of Deputy Coroner J. B. Thorsen of Lealand conducted an inquiry into Turner's death at the Bailey undertaking parlors and they returned a verdict of "accidental" death.

Turner, it was said, came to Mendota about ten years ago and since that time had made his home in a little shack on the south side of the city. An effort is being made to locate a sister, who supposedly lives at Hamlet, a village near Peoria.

The young man, who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kramer of Mt. Carroll, is survived by his parents; his wife, who was formerly Miss Katherine Angle of Polo, to whom he was married in April, 1926, and an infant son.

TUNNEY SAYS HE HAS FOUGHT HIS LAST RING BOUT

Champion Announced His Retirement at Luncheon Today

New York, July 31.—(AP)—Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion boxer, announced his retirement from the ring today at a luncheon given in honor of William Muldoon, 62-year-old member of the New York State Athletic Commission. "I have fought my last bout as a professional boxer," his statement said.

Staging a "farewell party" to the commissioner and more than 50 newspaper men guests, Tunney declared definitely that the time had come to step out of the game that had made him a millionaire. Reports had been circulating since he crushed Tom Heeney in an eleven round technical knockout at the Yankee Stadium last Thursday night.

"Feeling still young enough to make another start in new fields," Tunney declared himself grateful for the benefits conferred and anxious to leave the game better than he found it.

"There is no contender at the present time who appears capable of attracting real public interest," he said. "If there were I might delay my retirement long enough to face him in the ring, but it looks as if it might be two or three years before a dangerous opponent is developed. That is too long to stand and wait."

Tunney statement follows:

"I have fought my last bout as a professional boxer. "It is naturally with a certain regret that I announce my permanent retirement from the ring, no man realizes more than I do my debt to the game. It has treated me well. To it I owe such fame and fortune as I possess and it has given me something less ephemeral than fame—many real and warm friendships, which I hope and expect to keep through all the years to come. "I always shall take a live and active interest in boxing. There is no finer physical exercise or more engrossing science. It is a game which, properly conducted, teaches and develops such qualities as stamina, confidence, patience, self denial, bodily fitness, mental alertness and courage."

Champion's Statement

"I have a great affection for boxing and one of my chief desires has been to leave the game better than I found it. I have tried to be not only a champion, but a sportsman. "But the time has come when professional boxing can offer me nothing further than I desire. I am putting it behind me, grateful for benefits conferred, but with the feeling that I am still young enough to make a new start in other fields. "There is no contender at the present times who appears capable of attracting real public interest. If there were I might delay my retirement long enough to face him in the ring, but it looks as if it might be two or three years before a dangerous opponent is developed. That is too long to stand and wait."

"If I had fought again it would have been for Tex Rickard. I regard him as the foremost boxing promoter of all time. Realizing that another champion will follow me, I can think of no more capable hands than Rickard's in which to leave the selection of such a man, especially as he will necessarily be guided by the advice and assistance of another man to whom I owe more than I can express. There could be no more fitting time than this for me to pay tribute to the untarnished honor, the wise counsel, the generous friendship and the lion's heart of that grand old man of sport, William Muldoon."

Start New Field

"Under these circumstances it is my desire to place in the hands of Tex Rickard a bell, or other emblem of supremacy, to be awarded by him to that boxer who, through a series of elimination bouts, or victories over the most formidable opponents that can be obtained, shall prove himself deserving of it. "I have no thought of trying to nominate my successor. To the victor belong the spoils. I merely step aside and say, 'may the best man win.'"

Robbery Farm Home Near Amboy Reported

Wilbur Smith, who resides about three miles southwest of Amboy, has reported to the sheriff's office the loss of about a hundred dollars worth of articles from his home, which he believes were taken during his absence last Friday. Deputy Sheriff Fred Richardson, who is conducting the investigation, is depending upon the development of finger prints which were found on the lid of a trunk, from which most of the articles were taken. It was reported today that suspicion points strongly to parties who posed as friends of Smith and had knowledge of the articles taken and where they were kept.

A German Luger pistol, a relic of the World War, three practically new army blankets, a pair of army shoes and two blue work shirts were taken from the Smith home while he was working some distance away on a farm. Smith reports having seen a car drive away from his place when he returned home Friday and a man leap out of a clump of bushes and climb into the machine as it sped toward Amboy. This had happened however, before he had discovered the loss of his valuables and he suspects that the parties may have had some knowledge of the robbery.

HIGHER TARIFF LIVESTOCK URGED BY SEC. JARDINE

Sec. of Agriculture is in Conference With His Chief Executive

Superior, Wis., July 31.—(AP)—President Coolidge feels that his best contribution to Secretary's Hoover's campaign is to continue to so conduct the affairs of the nation that the record of the Republican party may commend itself to the voters.

Apart from this, Mr. Coolidge had made no plans for any particular activities in the campaign.

He will continue for the remainder of his term in his effort to conduct safely and efficiently the duties of the office which he undertook on the second of August, 1923.

In the meantime President Coolidge does consider it possible to attempt to secure tariff revision in favor of agriculture at the next short session of Congress.

Superior, Wis., July 31.—(AP)—An expert interpretation of Philippine affairs was available to President Coolidge today from E. A. Gilmore, Vice Governor of the Philippines, who had requested an appointment with the Chief Executive while in this country on leave. Mr. Gilmore was preceded on Mr. Coolidge's calendar by E. B. Clements, Republican National Committeeman from Missouri, who has been spending his summer vacation not far from Superior and who asked to be allowed to present his respects to Mr. Coolidge.

Aside from the questions which the engagements with these two visitors brought up, Mr. Coolidge gave much thought today to agricultural reports which he received yesterday from Secretary Jardine of the Agricultural Department. The cabinet officer departed from Cedar Island Lodge late yesterday after an overnight stay, resuming his journey to Alaska.

Mr. Jardine reported good crop and price conditions over all the United States, adding that the livestock industry shared the general well being, conditions, however, might be still further improved and stabilized, the Agricultural Secretary thought, by a "substantial agricultural tariff increase all along the line," and by encouraging and strengthening the co-operative marketing system.

Despite his positive ideas as to how farming conditions could be improved and his authoritative information regarding agricultural feeling in various parts of the country, Secretary Jardine said that he would not confer with Secretary Hoover while on the Pacific coast. Their itineraries although relatively close, did not cross, it was explained.

The cabinet officer would not reveal what reports he had conveyed to Mr. Coolidge regarding the farmers' attitude toward farm planks in the Republican or Democratic platforms.

Investigate Murder Near Dixon Beach

St. Paul 31.—(AP)—Rejecting robbery as the motive for the crime, St. Paul police officials today assigned two detectives to aid Sawyer county officials in their investigation of the slaying of Louis J. Bohn, Minneapolis typewriter salesman, near Hayward, Wisconsin last week.

The two St. Paul detectives left today for Radisson, Wisconsin about thirty miles south of Hayward. Bohn's body, bearing two bullet wounds, was found in a clump of bushes north of Hayward last Friday.

Authorities at first ascribed robbery as the motive for the crime, but on learning that Bohn did not have more than $40 in his pockets at the time, police abandoned that theory.

Investigation of the slaying was started here after Bohn's car was parked on the street the day after his body was found. Figure prints on the car were photographed for inspection by the sheriff of Sawyer county.

Arrested Here on Two Charges of Forgery

Eby Edwards, alias Jack Dwerell, was arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Fred Richardson upon the receipt of a warrant from Pittsfield, Pike county, which charged him with having forged two checks. Deputy Sheriff Johnson of Pittsfield came to Dixon and took his prisoner back to that city.

Edwards, who is said to have assumed the name of Dwerell, was visiting at the home of his wife's family Sunday when he was arrested. He is alleged to have been working on a farm near Pittsfield and last Friday asked the farmer for some of his wages. He was accommodated, the farmer making out two checks for $450 and $650 each. Both checks were said to have been raised and were cashed for $1450 and $1650 respectively, which when discovered Saturday after Edwards had left that locality, resulted in the issuance of the forgery warrant.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gonnerman and family of Chicago, who have been visiting in Dixon for the past several days, left Sunday accompanied by Miss Lillian and Annette Gonnerman for Lake Superior to spend several days.

PEACE IN COAL INDUSTRY SEEMS TO BE NEARER

Miners and Operators Meet in Chicago to Frame Scale

Chicago, July 31.—(AP)—Committees representing both Illinois coal miners and operators were optimistic today at the opening of a conference here to try to reach an agreement on wages and working conditions.

The conference was called after miners had decided to discard the Jacksonville wage agreement on which they formerly insisted and to which the operators objected. Scale committees of each side held separate meetings yesterday but no indication of the proposals each would submit was forthcoming at the joint conference convened shortly before noon.

W. J. Jenkins, president of the operators, and Harry Fishwick, head of the Illinois miners, however, both expressed confidence that some sort of agreement mutually satisfactory would be reached.

After a meeting lasting about two hours the joint conference adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to allow time during the afternoon for separate conferences of the miners and operators' committees. At the morning conference, those attending said the meeting did not progress so far as the discussion of wages, but miners and operators' spokesmen expressed a desire for peace in the industry.

REED DECLARES CANDIDATES MUST BACK WET STAND

Missouri Senator in Strong Support of Governor Al Smith

Kansas City, July 31.—(AP)—Back in his home town and state Senator James A. Reed has plunged into the state political campaign, with the declaration that Democratic state nominees must be in harmony with the ideas of Governor Alfred E. Smith on prohibition.

Stating the nomination of Governor Smith committed the party to a policy of revision or repeal of the 18th amendment, the Missouri Senator last night said the state must nominate candidates who will adhere to the national form "else the party will be eliminated in a joint debate with itself."

Speaking in behalf of his friend, James A. Collet, candidate for the nomination to succeed Reed, Mr. Reed launched an attack on Collet's opponent, Charles M. Hay of St. Louis, dry, who has declared he stands for prohibition enforcement.

"The Houston convention declared simply for enforcement of the laws," he said. "If it had stopped there, it could well be said there was no issue with reference to modification of the Volstead Act. But, to remove all questions, the convention was held in session for the express purpose of receiving a message from Governor Smith, and when it came, it unequivocally declared for a modification."

"The situation is as though the language of Governor Smith's telegram had been incorporated in the platform. That was the intent of a majority of the delegates."

"Nomination of Hay will imperil the entire ticket," Senator Reed declared. "It will place the Democratic party before the public in the position of espousing two candidates of diametrically opposite views regarding prohibition."

"Adherents of Hay upon this question will be aiding and abetting the defeat of Governor Smith."

"I protest against Heflinizing of Missouri," the senator said. "I know Tom Heflin and I know Charlie Hay. I say to you they are as much alike as two pieces of beef of the same carcass, only Hay comes a little nearer the bone."

The address was the first of three to be delivered in the state this week.

Runaway Girl Falls Into Police Hands

Freeport, Ill., July 31.—(AP)—Wilma Strong, a 12-year-old girl, who said she was not happy at the home of her foster parents in Sycamore, ran away dressed in boy's clothing and was held by Freeport police today for relatives.

The girl left her home Friday and rode a bicycle to Freeport where she was apprehended last night when she attempted to sell it for $2.

She told police she took $20 from her foster mother, bought the wheel for $12 and started away without any particular destination. She had $120 when she arrived here and attempted to sell the bicycle to obtain more funds.

Seeking New Record on Mississippi River

Natchez, Miss., July 31.—(AP)—The motor boat Bogie, seeking to establish a new speed record on the Mississippi river from New Orleans to St. Louis, reached Natchez at 9:25 A. M. today. The boat, piloted by Dr. Louis Leroy, 35-year-old physician and sportsman, had traveled approximately 260 miles since casting off at New Orleans at 5:48 P. M. yesterday.

GEORGE BRENNAN, DEMOCRATIC HEAD OF STATE, SICK

He Has Fighting Chance to Pull Through, Doctors Say

BULLETIN

Chicago, July 31.—(AP)—George E. Brennan, Democratic National Committeeman for Illinois and nationally prominent in politics, has "a fighting chance to pull through," Dr. C. R. G. Forrester, one of the staff of physicians attending him, announced this afternoon.

Mr. Brennan who underwent an operation yesterday for septic poisoning brought on by an infected tooth was described as resting easily and in a much improved condition by Dr. Forrester at noon. The physician said the Democratic leader's temperature was 98, pulse 80 and respiration 24 and said the patient had been resting well during the morning.

Dr. Forrester said his patient's condition still was very serious but that the doctors in attendance now entertained hope that he would recover and that he had a chance to do so.

Chicago, July 31.—(AP)—George E. Brennan, 63, Illinois Democratic leader, was gravely ill from septic poisoning early today in John B. Murphy hospital.

Late last night Mr. Brennan received the sacrament of extreme unction, the last rite of the Catholic church for the living, from the Rev. Fr. Lawrence Lee.

Although Mr. Brennan's condition was pronounced slightly improved early today, a conference of five physicians issued the statement that "Mr. Brennan's condition is very grave." Mrs. Brennan, their daughter, and State Representative Joseph L. Gill, brother-in-law of Mr. Brennan, were at his bedside.

An emergency operation was performed last night by Dr. Karl Meyer in an attempt to prevent spread of infection caused by extraction of two teeth Thursday. A lung infection had developed, and the poison spread through Mr. Brennan's entire system.

Seemed in Good Health

Until Thursday Mr. Brennan was seemingly in good health, though he had complained of his teeth. He was taken to the hospital yesterday, when friends first learned of his illness.

Although ill two years ago when he underwent an operation on his leg, during his unsuccessful campaign for the United States Senate, Mr. Brennan has continued his activity in Democratic political circles as national committeeman from Illinois and as a leading advocate of Gov. Al Smith's candidacy for the presidency.

In addition to his work as field marshal of the Smith forces at the Houston convention, Mr. Brennan has been active in support of Floyd E. Thompson, Democratic nominee for Governor of Illinois. The Democratic leader's daily program has regularly included afternoon political conferences, which he termed his avocation.

Since 1897, when he came to Chicago from Springfield where he was a clerk in an especially since 1920 when he succeeded Roger Sullivan as Democratic leader in Illinois, Mr. Brennan has been known as "the man behind the scenes," and only once has he been a candidate for office himself.

In 1926 his leg operation was performed in the midst of his race for the Senatorship against Col. Frank L. Smith. He has been known chiefly for his ability to bolster Democratic strength in a normally Republican state.

Mr. Brennan was generally credited with putting William E. Dever in Chicago's mayoral chair in

Painter Killed in Fall of 45 Feet

Hammond, Ind., July 31—(AP)—J. E. Coyle, 35, Chicago painting contractor was killed today while working at the State Line generating plan when he fell 45 feet from a paint swing when a hook slipped and released the rope holding the swing.

PILE SUFFERERS

You can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Nothing but an internal remedy can do this—that's why cutting and salves fail. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, is guaranteed to quickly and safely banish any form of Pile misery or money back. Rowland's Pharmacy, Dixon and Rochelle and druggists everywhere sell it with this guarantee.—Adv.

Mrs. Durkes Writes Interesting Sketch

Mrs. W. C. Durkes, who is a versatile and entertaining writer, has been engaged for some time on writing a sketch, a history of oldest Chicago born citizen, now living, and this is her father, William B. Steel. In the near future Mrs. Durkes will go to Chicago where she will be the guest of Miss Caroline McVaine, noted lecturer and writer, who at one time was librarian of the Chicago Historical Society and whose lectures are now much in demand. Mrs. Durkes will read her historical sketch to Mrs. McVaine and guests, including Mrs. K. X. anous, a noted writer, whose profile writings are so enjoyed in the Chicago Tribune. Incorporated in the article by Mrs. Durkes are incidents of interest historically correct pertaining both to Dixon and Chicago, and there is mention of Dixon people who have since become famous, or noted for good works. Dixonites will be enabled later to read excerpts from this fascinating sketch.

MENU for the FAMILY

BY SISTER MARY
BREAKFAST—Blackberries, cereal, cream, creamed dried beef with toast cubes, toast, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Rice loaf with stuffed tomatoes, lettuce with French dressing, blueberry ginger bread, milk, tea.
DINNER—Steamed fillets of flounder, buttered potatoes, spinach, hearts of romaine and cucumber salad, butter scotch bread pudding, milk, coffee.

When serving lettuce to children make the dressing with lots of olive oil and use just enough lemon juice to make the dressing pleasant to the taste. Shred the lettuce very fine and be sure that every particle is coated with the dressing. This applies particularly to thin little folks who need plenty of easily digested fat in their diet.

Rice Loaf with Stuffed Tomatoes
Two cups cooked brown rice, 3 medium sized onion, 2 green peppers, 1-2 cup chopped walnut meats, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tomatoes, 1 cup cooked green peas, 2 cups cream sauce, parsley.

Peel onions and remove seeds and pith from peppers. Mince onions and peppers and cook over a low fire in butter until tender. Add to rice with nuts and mix thoroughly. Pack into a well buttered mold and steam forty minutes. Cut tomatoes in halves crosswise without peeling and steam twenty minutes. Slip off skin and scoop out seeds. Dust with salt and fill with hot buttered peas. Turn out rice loaf onto a hot platter, surrounded with prepared tomatoes and hot in a not even and garnish with pour over cream sauce. Make very sprigs of parsley to serve.

Any left over cooked vegetable, such as green or wax beans can be used in place of the peas suggested.

Short Interviews with Famous Women

By NEA Service

Mrs. Dresser, famous comedian, blames Mr. Modern Man for what's wrong with America today. She says: "The chief trouble with the women of today can be found in the men who surround them. We shall have better women when we have better men."

"There are, sad to relate, very few He-Men today. That's rather tough on the women. I suppose they are making the best of it but they are getting a bad break."

"I believe women really miss the Cave Man, whose methods we so loudly decried as vulgar and brutal. But I am old enough and still young enough to believe that the man who lets his girl know he might beat her is the man who really loves her."

"In America the chief offender of social decency today is the young married woman, the wealthy wife with too much leisure. She has a man taking care of her every need and a protected home. Yet she opens her flouts this confidence to go her merry, jazzy way. The modern man is as selfish of his own interests as a beautiful but dumb partner. He is so soft he makes things soft for her too."

"The modern woman has too much cake. She is nauseated with her diet of sweets and hasn't seen yet that the world has no permanent place for wasters. Wealth has suffocated the average woman high up on the social ladder and her example of recklessness is being felt all down the line. What she really needs is an old-fashioned He-Man with an iron hand, to steady her."

ARE GUESTS AT NEECEDAH LODGE

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Woods of Chicago are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wilhelm in this city for a few days and the members of the Wilhelm family and the Woods are enjoying a outing at Necedah Lodge above Grand Detour.

CONFERRED WITH OFFICERS OF S. W. V. CAMP

Dept. Adjutant, E. H. D. Couch and wife of Peoria was in Dixon and conferred with the officers of the Spanish War Veterans Camp.

The WOMAN'S DAY

These girls who are always popping up offering their fair hands in marriage to any "good man" who will give, in exchange, anywhere from ten to a hundred thousand dollars, give me quite a peeve. The obvious comment that, after all, any able bodied girl with any ambition can get a job isn't so good, for while she might get an $18-a-week job it would take a long time to save up $10,000.

WHY PAY FOR ONE?

But the real point is any modern girl's assumption that in this modern world with more marriageable women than men and with wives more of a liability than an asset and with men able to get along very well, thank you, without wives, any of them need to pay for one. Just some philosophy born from the case of Beatrice Albert of Siren, Wis., who recently got into court with her plan to marry a man who would give her parents a home.

MAYBE IS SILLY

Yet, when I say that men do not need wives so much these days, do I know any more what I'm talking about than does Mary Borden, an English writer who, returning from an American tour, takes her pen in hand to discuss American women? She says, in part, that the American woman is never still, a creature all motion, demanding constant variety and change, eternally dancing, theater-going, collecting "new antiques," Chippendale, China, pottery, et al and aler, just as all returning foreigners say.

ALL WIPING NOSES

One looks in vain for this "American woman" at the beach, at the movies, at the grocery store, wherever one encounters American women so busy keeping ants out of the chocolate picnic cake, cuffing the kids' ears and wiping their noses that one imagines Ming pottery and the "dansants" are as far from their minds as the best leprosy cures.

"SO, THERE"

When Mrs. Frank Wilson, 49, of Indianapolis, got her divorce the other day, the judge gave her a rather able husband the house. That seems to have made her mad. For she pleaded guilty in court to setting fire to the house. Knowing the quirks in men and women it's only queer that such gestures of disdain for mere judicial decisions don't occur oftener than they do.

HER OWN PERFUME

Perhaps all this chatter about "match" your personality with your perfume isn't so insane after all. A certain woman was coming home from the theater the other night when she and her escort passed three strangers in the apartment lobby. As they passed by, the woman cried, "Why, that's my perfume!" The men started to run. When caught, all the household silver was found upon them and they confessed that they had squirted the woman's perfume atomizer over themselves.

IS GUEST AT W. J. SULLIVAN HOME

Seedman is Not Always to Blame for No Flowers

Joliet, Ill. (AP)—Don't blame the seedman if flowers fail to come up! This caution for growers of flowers is elaborated by The American Botanist, a quarterly magazine published here. Mr. Chute is founder and editor of the magazine.

"By July," he wrote, "many of us have recovered from the disappointment of sowing seeds that did not come up. The more we find out about the germination of seeds, however, the less we are inclined to blame the seedman. In general, it may be said that given proper soil, moisture and warmth, the seeds of cultivated plants should grow; they are descendants of plants whose seeds have been sprouting promptly for endless generations."

"That such seeds are almost always able to grow is shown by their behavior in the greenhouse where growth conditions can be controlled. If the seeds are fresh, one expects most of them to come up. With the seeds of wild plants it is quite different. They seldom come up in abundance, even in wild nature."

We often hear of the "struggle for existence" but for a large number of seeds the struggle is ended before it begins. When only one holly seed in a million will grow under the best of conditions we get some idea of how few of the numerous seeds produced in the plant world ever come to maturity. Sometimes parent plant wraps up its embryos so securely that neither water nor oxygen can get to them and so they perish.

"Other seeds are so immature at the time the fruit is ripe that they require a long period after ripening and must lie in the ground a long time to develop. In at least one plant, the pollen tube has not reached the ovule when the fruit falls from the tree. Peony seeds lie on the ground for at least a year before the young plants show above the ground, though a long root is developed the first season."

"Some seeds do not get a fair start in the world, their embryos being so weak that they cannot survive. Often a handful of seeds from a wild plant fails to produce a single specimen. If a few plants can be secured, however, their seeds germinate more readily and soon we have plants whose seeds give plenty of plants from each sowing. Here's a bit of evolution has been going on."

"The plants whose seeds did not germinate were simply eliminated, while those whose seeds grew at all have developed a tendency to continue in this way. It needs only a few trials, however, to show that unless all the conditions are favorable one can hardly expect the seeds of some wild plants to grow at all."

Nineteenth Reunion Lee Co. Assn. in California Held

The nineteenth reunion of the Lee County Association of Southern California was held in Echo Park, Los Angeles, Saturday, July 2nd, and brought out a goodly company of folks from the home state.

George E. Krinbill of Long Beach who has been president during the life of the society presided over the affair and brought a feeling of cordiality to all which gave the "old home" atmosphere.

Mrs. Bert O. Boothby who had general charge of the dinner beguiled the genial Bert and Jud Potter and Frank Morris into building fires in the out-door ovens and then with the assistance of Mrs. Harry Kimmel and Mrs. F. H. Garrison spread the wonderful array of good eats which we served cafeteria style.

Henry Schmidt, visiting his daughter, Mrs. C. E. Floto, in Long Beach, was a welcomed attendant. Although the Illinois state picnic occurred the same day many chose to come to the Lee county reunion instead.

This occasion was voted one of the pleasantest in the society's history. The following were in attendance: (Illinois address after California) Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harrison, San

THE FINESSE—2.
When a finesse fails to work do not be discouraged. Rest content with the knowledge that you are playing correctly. No guarantee goes with every attempt of this kind. The law of probability favors it, however, when played as shown in the instances cited in this chapter.

If the reason for the method of play for each instance is not apparent, reverse the procedure and the logic governing the recommended play will become quite obvious. You will find that when you reverse the method the probability of making the trick not only diminishes but often vanishes.

Following are some instances when a finesse should be tried:

(1) Dummy holding AQJ; Declarer, 2, 3. Three tricks may be made. Declarer leads 2 and finessses Jack. Then he returns to his hand in another suit and leads 3, finessing Queen.

(2) Dummy holds AKJ; Declarer, 6, 5, 4. Three tricks may be made. Declarer leads 4 and finesses Jack. (3) Dummy holding A Q 10; Declarer, 8, 5, 4. Two or three tricks may be made. Declarer leads 4 and finesses 10. Then he returns to his hand in another suit and leads 5, finessing Queen.

(4) Dummy holding A J 10; Declarer, 4, 3, 2. Two or three tricks may be made. Declarer leads 2 and finesses 10. Then he returns to his hand in another suit and leads 3, finessing Jack.

(5) Dummy holding K 9; Declarer, 7, 2. One trick may be made. Declarer leads 2 and finesses King. If West covers 2 with Ace, 9 is discarded from dummy and King is high. If East holds the Ace, the finesse fails but when the distribution is such, the King must be lost no matter how it is played. Leading from the dummy, my would lose the King no matter which one of the opponents held the ace. The finessses gives the declarer his only chance of making the King good.

(6) Dummy holding K Q 2; Declarer, 4, 3. Two tricks may be made. Declarer leads 3 and finesses Queen. Then he returns to his hand in another suit and leads 4, finessing King.

(7) Dummy holding, A 4; Declarer, Q 5. Two tricks may be made. From the dummy the 4 is played and declarer finesses the Queen. (Copyright, -928, by the Ready Reference Publishing Co.)

THE USE OF TELEVISION.

Within a few years, according to present indications, the process of television will be perfected for every-day use. Then we shall be able to sit in our homes, twirl a few knobs on our radio cabinets and see events taking place hundreds or thousands of miles off. The ordinary bounds of time and space will be completely overcome.

We are fairly well used to radio and its marvels by this time, and miracles are our daily fare. Probably we shall take television as a matter of course; in a few years, it may be, we shall fuss and fume whenever a passing thunderstorm or other atmospheric disturbance renders the images on our screens a little less than perfectly distinct.

Yet the whole thing ought to excite our wonder, at that. The simple fact is that mankind, at last, is freeing itself from the domination of the universe and asserting its mastery over its material surroundings. We are doing the impossible; the future, in its possibilities, is more glittering than anyone in history ever dreamed.

There is only one disturbing factor. This miracle of television, demonstrating the kingship of man's mind, will be used largely so that we can see prize fights, baseball games and political rallies—just as the radio is used to send the tin-panny strains of "Mississippi Mud," "That's My Weakness Now" and the like, and just as the movies give us "Silk Legs" and "Flames of Passion."

We have developed our scientific and mechanical devices a little bit faster than we have developed ourselves. Our hands are better than our heads. The big job that we ought to tackle next is to bring ourselves up to the level of our inventions.

Television will be a fine thing, just as the radio and the movies are fine things. But if its chief use is to enable us to see prize fights and bathing girl reviews without stirring out of our homes, we won't be much better off than we are now.

Our scientists and inventors are placing great tools in our hands; tools with which, if we will, we can make simply unbelievable strides along the road of progress. But we must learn how to use them. The next great advance must come in the realm of ideas.

Perspiring, and reading all about those thrilling rescues from ice floes of the frozen northland, we can't understand why some of the victims haven't shouted, "No, no, this is just the climate we've been looking for."

The Department of Agriculture comes to bat with the shocking declaration that sauerkraut is not a German invention, but is probably of Chinese origin. Maybe the department, will be telling us yet that chop suey is really an Irish dish.

Henry Ford gave one of his new models to a Michigan station agent for the telegraph key Edison used as a young man. We have an old picture of the Floradora sextet at home—maybe we'll decide a Ford is the best buy, after all.

Charlie Curtis, the Republican candidate for vice-president, was made a doctor of laws at Emporia College the other day. We're for Charlie, as some of the laws do seem pretty sick.

Among the contributions to the Republican campaign fund the other day were two fifty-cent pieces. People are beginning to take their politics too seriously.

A headline in a Philadelphia newspaper says: "Lone Bandit Robs Woman of $1,000 in Downtown Hotel." What! One man!

A Kentucky girl, powdering her nose, was shocked by lightning. If she is one of the modern flappers, the lightning made a unique record.

Bolivia has banned bull fights as not being educational. Now that's one good reason!

A New York pastor the other day praised "those who blunder but go on." None of the cabinet officers was mentioned by name, however.

Couple of soap companies down east merged the other day. Bet somebody in that deal cleaned up.

THE TINYMITES

STORY & HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES & KNICK

At last the Tinymites were through. They'd made their wooden man. "He'll do," said Copy, as he dropped a saw and hammer on the ground. "We've surely done all that we can to make him look just like a man. Come on, let's stand him up now," and then turn him 'round and 'round.

And so they stood him on his feet. "Well, well, he's surely pretty neat," laughed Copy, as he eyed the man from front, and then from back. "The leaves we've given him for hair are falling off. They won't stay there." Then Scouty made them tighter just by driving in a tack.

"Oh, gee, be careful," Copy cried. "How would you like to have your hide filled up with little tacks and such. It wouldn't be much fun." The Tines laughed and someone said, "Oh, shucks, that didn't hurt his head. He hasn't any feelings. Why, he cannot walk or run."

Just then Copy looked around and shouted, "Sit him on the ground. I have a little hunch that I believe will work out grand." He took a run and jump and skip and reached down in their magic grip. The Tines watched and shortly saw a bottle in his hand.

"Well, what is that?" somebody cried. "How did you know that was inside our little grip? I'm sure that I have never seen it before." "Now just be patient as you can. This stuff goes on the wooden man," said Copy. "I will pour it on, and you'll see what it's for."

He pulled the little cork right out. It seemed there wasn't any doubt that Copy knew just what to do. "Now watch me close," said he. He tipped the bottle over the man and out some funny fluid ran. "When this stuff works," he shouted, "quite a thrilling sight you'll see."

CATCHING ONE DISEASE TO CURE ANOTHER

For many years fever has been recognized as a curative or protective effort on the part of the body, and a great deal of experimentation has been made in medical circles in an attempt to accomplish the cure of specific disease by actually producing in the patient, another disease different from the one from which he is suffering. This may sound ridiculous, but it has actually proved beneficial in many cases.

Patients suffering from paralysis and insanity have been deliberately inoculated with malaria, and after the fever has run its course there have been reports of cure in from twenty to thirty per cent of the cases. Let me explain what actually happens so that you will not be misled into thinking that a new or mysterious remedy has been developed.

Even in the days of Hippocrates and Galen a moderate fever was recognized as beneficial. Doctors who are accustomed to fasting and dieting their patients know that as the patient improves he often passes through acute sick periods which are termed "crisis" periods. We frequently notice an acute skin eruption about a week after taking an exclusive diet of some alkaline forming food. When the diet is continued a few days longer, the eruption is cleared up and the patient feels much improved in health. This is an effect of the increased alkalinity of the blood which enables the blood to dissolve poisons which have settled in various organs and tissues of the body which, if allowed to remain, slowly but surely produce serious local and general diseases.

These poisons may be discharged through various organs and membranes, according to the type of toxin being eliminated. If through the skin, there may be profuse sweating or skin eruptions; if through the bowels, there may be gas, diarrhea or mucus; through the nose and throat, mucus; through the kidneys, scalding urine or sediment; through the liver, biliousness or vomiting.

You can see that some of these curative processes resemble the effects of some diseases, and this sometimes leads to conclusions of patients or even doctors, who are not familiar with the effects of various foods on the body.

Sometimes after a few days of dieting or fruit fasting, an individual will develop a feverish condition, with a feeling of debility which may be associated with fleeting pains in the muscles and joints. This is simply caused by the dissolving of toxins which are carried by the blood from their deposited areas to the eliminative organs, and in the process of traveling the toxins come in contact with delicate nerves and irritate them.

If the individual continues on the diet, these unpleasant consequences disappear within a few days or hours, and the individual then gains in strength with remarkable rapidity.

These symptoms do not occur in many instances, but I want you to know about them so that you will know what is happening if you sometime see such an occurrence.

I do not advise long fasts without supervision, but no one can be injured by a few days of an acid fruit diet, followed by correctly balanced feeding.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Mrs. R. H. asks: "Will you kindly state in your column what causes an ache like a tooth ache in the middle of one's foot?"

ANSWER: Sometimes one of the bones in the arch of the foot become slightly misplaced. This can usually be corrected by a chiropodist or an osteopath who understands the construction of the foot.

QUESTION: K. L. asks: "Will you please tell me if peas and corn are starchy foods? Is it all right to substitute fruit for luncheon in your Curative Diet once in a while? I surely appreciate your wonderful articles, and thank the editor for giving us the privilege of reading them."

ANSWER: Peas and corn are both starchy foods and should not be eaten in combination with acids. A person may use only fruit for lunch occasionally and will probably feel better for doing so. I am glad that you are enjoying my newspaper articles. It is my aim to make them as helpful as possible.

QUESTION: Mrs. A. B. asks: "What are the symptoms and what is the cure of tapeworm?"

ANSWER: The only absolute proof of the presence of a tapeworm is to find some of its segments in the stool. Sometimes there are symptoms of irritation, excessive hunger, intestinal irritation and grating the teeth during one's sleep. The best remedy is to live on the acid fruits for several days and follow this with one of the numerous worm remedies which you can obtain at any drug-store.

QUESTION: C. E. asks: "What causes and what will remove 'bloodshot' from the eyes?"

ANSWER: The bloodshot condition of your eyes is probably due to some form of eyestrain either from bad reading habits, insufficient sleep, cyeing, infection of the eye, or from some defect of vision which should be corrected with glasses.

NEW "RACKET" TOLD TO SPECIAL JURORS

Chicago, July 30—(AP)—Report of a new "racket," that of collecting funds on representation that the money was to go to the special grand jury fund, was received today as the July special grand jury attempted to wind up its work before discharge, to make way for the August jury which will continue the investigation of primary frauds and election irregularities.

Major Will H. Clark, office manager of the special grand jury, confirmed the racketeering report, and said the money was not being turned into the special fund, started to finance the special grand jury investigation after county commissioners refused to vote an appropriation.

David D. Stansbury, Assistant Special Attorney General, said he had not determined what action would be taken against the bogus collectors, but that if definite evidence was disclosed he probably would seek the arrest of the offenders and have them held to the special grand jury.

Blind From Birth, Girl Tells—

HOW IT FEELS TO SEE AFTER LIVING 20 YEARS IN UTTER DARKNESS

GAY COLORS AND FRIENDS' FACES GIVE HER BIGGEST THRILL

BLIND 20 YEARS, SHE SEES

By NEA Service

Milwaukee—Faces and colors are the two most interesting things in the world to 20-year-old Marcella Calkins.

Marcella was born blind. A few weeks ago a series of delicate surgical operations gave her her sight, and for the first time in her life she could use her eyes. And now she is quite sure that she is the happiest girl in the world.

On the first evening that the doctors took the bandages off her eyes and let her look about her, Marcella stood on the lawn of the hospital and watched the red sun go down beyond the horizon.

"It was marvellous," she said. "The colors—I never dreamed such colors existed. And to think they come every night!"

Then, a little later, she went on to say that she could never get tired of looking at faces.

"I was just as surprised by the appearance of my own face as I was by the faces of my friends," she said. "When, by accident, I first saw myself in a mirror I didn't know who it was. And I had to get acquainted with my friends all over again. Everyone was strange to me until they spoke—then I recognized them. Now, of course, I am coming to know them by sight."

They're All Handsome

Incidentally, Marcella has no standards by which to judge whether any particular face is homely or beautiful. All are equally absorbing to her; Bull Montana and John Gilbert, undoubtedly would interest her exactly the same.

Living in a world of light is a different matter from living in a world of darkness. When her eyes were first opened Marcella had to learn to walk all over again. When she went to climb up or down stairs she had to shut her eyes to keep from falling. Doors bothered her greatly, and the sight of her own feet moving about seemed inexplicably funny to her. But faces, and bright colors, were the things that interested her most.

She has been spending her days since the operation in simply going about and looking at things. The commonest trip down the street is a great adventure. A visit to the shore of Lake Michigan enchanted her. She looked out over the blue water and gazed for a long time at the white, billowy clouds overhead.

"It's beautiful," she said quietly. "I had never been able to picture clouds."

She went to the zoo and was enthralled. A nurse took her to the theater one night, and Marcella was overjoyed.

"It was marvellous," she said afterward. "It was the greatest thrill of my life."

Not Funny—Interesting

The moving pictures came upon the screen a bit too fast for her unaccustomed eyes, but she was thrilled nevertheless. The movies gave her her first glimpse of an airplane, a balloon, and a steamship. Then newsreel pictures of Gov. Al Smith were flashed on the screen, and the nurse explained to her that this was the Democratic presidential nominee. She studied his face closely, and remarked that the change of expressions on it was extremely interesting.

Then the vaudeville program with its bright lights, gay colors and lively movements, fascinated her.

"The comedians aren't funny to me," she explained. "But they are interesting because of their expressions."

Marcella Calkins sits on a bench in the grounds of a Milwaukee hospital and examines an entirely new thing—a newspaper. Inset is a closeup of the girl.

and movements. I never imagined anything like their motions or those of the dancers."

When the show was over and the nurse took her back to the hospital, where she has been regaining her strength, she said:

"I never was unhappy on account of my blindness, for I never knew what I missed, but now I am so much happier and so interested and attracted by what I can see that I know I shall be happy all my life. The theater tonight was marvellous. I want to come often."

Nothing, however, gives her any more happiness than just to sit on a bench in the hospital grounds and study the green of the grass, the vastness of the sky, the fleecy whiteness of the clouds, and to watch the birds light on the ground nearby. Life is never dull for her now.

She is still waiting for the sight she yearns for most—the sight of her mother's face. Her mother has been unable to leave the family home in Chetek, Wis., but Marcella will see her very soon. Meanwhile she is undecided what she will do in the future after she has regained her strength.

Is Good Stenographer

She was educated in a school for the blind, and became an accomplished stenographer, being able to take dictation at the rate of 130 words a minute. She believes she will capitalize on this ability and get a job as secretary—although first she must learn how to read print. Heretofore, of course, she could only read the Braille letters.

Marcella is the daughter of a carpenter and was blind from birth. After she graduated from the school for the blind, at Jareville, a few months ago, friends induced her to enter a hospital here and see if doctors could restore her sight. Six very delicate operations were performed; but now, with the aid of heavy-lensed glasses, she has almost normal vision.

Who's Who in Dogdom—No. 12

GREAT DANE ONE HUNTER THAT THAT GAVE UP THE SPORT

The Great Dane is an example of a canine breed that has changed its nature since earlier days. At least it is now classed as "non-sporting," although its early history shows that it was undoubtedly a hunting dog.

Long before the Norman Conquest in England the Saxons used the Great Dane's progenitor, the Boarhound, to hunt wild boars, and in early German history the same type of dog is described as a hunter. Old Egyptian paintings depict dogs very similar in type to our Great Dane, some of them showing even the harlequin markings common to the modern Great Danes.

The Great Dane is noble in appearance as well as in disposition. Although not aggressive, this monstrous member of the dog family makes an effectual guard. He is stately and dignified and an ideal companion.

In general appearance the Great

Dane should be remarkable in size and very muscular, carrying his head and neck high. The minimum height of an adult male of championship caliber is 30 inches. He should weigh after 18 months, about 120 pounds. The female should measure about 28 inches in height and weigh around 100 pounds.

The coat is an important factor in judging a Great Dane. The hair should be short, dense and sleek. In on case should it incline to roughness. In spite of its size the dog should be lithe and springy in its movements.

ROCHELLE NEWS

Rochelle—Rev. O. H. Linnemier, of Union, Illinois, has accepted a call to become pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church in this city to succeed the late Reverend E. A. Bartusch. The installation of Reverend Linnemier will take place on Sunday afternoon, August 5th. Rev. Gehlke, of Belvidere, will be the installing officer. Rev. Linnemier was born at Freebelle, Indiana on February 21, 1891. At the age of fourteen he began his preparatory for the ministry at Fort Wayne, Indiana. After a six years' preparatory course, he continued his studies at the Missouri Synod's Theological Seminary, where he was graduated in June 1915. He has served pastorates in Saskatchewan, Canada (five years); Hilliards, Ohio (2 years); and has been at St. John's Lutheran church, Union, Illinois since December 1922. He has a wife and two children. The new pastor and wife will move into the parsonage here August 15th. The Lutheran church is in a prosperous condition and the new pastor will enter upon his pastorate here under very favorable conditions.

Harold P. Stevens and John P. Manning, 33rd Division World War veterans and members of Rochelle Post No. 403, American Legion, have received their commissions as lieutenants in the Officers' Reserve corps.

Dr. and Mrs. T. E. Feuser left Saturday on a three weeks' vacation trip. They were guests of Miss Alma Happe, local high school teacher over the week-end at Chilli, Wisconsin and the balance of their time will be spent at Long Lake and Lake Managua, Wis.

The following ladies spent five days last week at a cottage at Lake Delavan, Wis.: Mrs. Harold Lazier, Miss Josephine Talbot, Mrs. Clare Countryman, Mrs. Burton Knight, Mrs. John Ippen, Miss Ethel Talbot, Mrs. Lloyd Grey and Miss Dellouise Harms. The ladies were hostesses to their husbands and gentleman friends at Sunday dinner.

Miss Ella Dailey, teacher in the Creston schools, has received a diploma for completing the two year course at the State Teachers' college at DeKalb.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin V. Peterman and Mr. Peterman's mother, of Franklin Grove, spent Sunday at Delevan Lake, Wisconsin.

Mrs. Marshall Kramer and sister Mrs. Jackson, of Coloma, Michigan, have been called to Los Angeles, California by the serious illness of their father, William Miller, who formerly resided in this city.

Miss Marjorie Buzard, stenographer in the Hayes-O'Brien-Peterman law offices, resumed her work, Monday, after spending a two week's vacation in Michigan. Miss Dorothy Herkenheim substituted for Miss Buzard.

Mrs. Frank Tracy of Newton, Ia., has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Rinehart.

An interesting tour of Yokohama, Japan including a visit to a Japanese school, and the thrill of having your birthday remembered while on ship-board is interestingly told by Miss Lucille Clark, written aboard the President Pierce, June 4th, to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Clark. Miss Clark was enroute to Manila, Philippine Islands, where she will teach school. Miss Clark, who is a graduate of Rochelle high school, writes in part as follows:

"I am going to begin with my birthday. When I ordered my dessert at dinner, the waiter brought in a beautifully iced birthday cake. It was white with sprays of cherry blossoms put on it in colors. There were sixteen candles on it, too. It was a fruit cake and like most of the Chinese cakes, was dry. The waiter also brought plates for me to serve some to the while dining room. It was all a surprise to me. They say the chief steward checks over the passports to see if there are any birthdays while we are on board. So far mine has been the only one. On June 1st, we landed in Yokohama. I was the second one down the gang plank. We bid goodbye to some of the passengers, rounded up the ten teachers who in about a second were surrounded by twenty-five jinrickshaw drivers. We haggled with them. One always has to ask them how much they want and then dicker until they do it for about ten sen or twenty sen less. We had to have our money that we wanted to spend changed into yen (two yen, $1.00) and sen (2 sen, 1c) before we could spend it. There were money changers at the boat who did it for us.

"We rode to the new Grand Hotel, which lives up to its name. It is decorated in Oriental style but has European service. Mr. Gebhardt and Mr. Briggs got a couple of cars and set off through the city. I wish you could see the streets—crowded with people apparently too thick for cars to pass. All through Japan the motor cars have two horns—a mild one that blows most of the time, and a shrill one that says: 'Get out or get hit.' Even then people just step aside without looking back. No one moves fast or seems to be afraid. Everyone passes on the left, too, so it is all the more nerve racking. There are lots of bicycles ridden by people wearing wooden sandals.

"Many men are trucking, but in place of a motor they strap themselves to a wagon tongue and go to it. We saw lots of ox carts and Jersey cows hitched up to wagons. "I was amazed at the way people dress. Lots of the men wear kimono dresses. Lots of other wear just B. V. D's and others just the pants. Many of them are barefoot. Many wear wooden sandals and very few wear hose. We saw several youngsters without any clothes but most of them wear one garment. The more I saw the gladder I was that I was born in America and of the white race.

Ohio River Race Revives Ancient Glory of Packets

Racing up the Ohio river, bow to bow, ships of a bygone era came back into the spotlight the other day with a contest that furnished all the old thrills of the storied races along the Mississippi. The Chris Green (right) and the Betsy Ann (left) were the packets, and in their 26-mile battle from Cincinnati to New Richmond the Green finished only five lengths ahead of her rival. The time was two hours and fifteen minutes. It was said that more than $50,000 was bet on the race. The winner took as prize a pair of gilded antlers the Betsy Ann had won on the Mississippi years ago. The winner is a steel boat, built in 1925, while the Betsy Ann is of wood, and was constructed 18 years ago. Here they are shown as they left Cincinnati, with smoke pouring from both boats as "full speed ahead" was ordered.

principal or the master as they call him. When he came in he was a little short Japanese with a twenty-nine haired mustache and gold teeth. He ushered us into a room and seated us around a long table. We thought he was probably going to have tea served to us but he drew out a chair for himself, sat down, opened up a fan and began to tell us that he was glad we came but very sorry he couldn't speak English. He showed us around the building, which was a very fine one. Out in the playground there were covered shelters where youngsters could play in rainy weather.

"The teachers wear a kimono and a bright colored obi or sash around their waist. On their feet they have sandals made from matting and fastened on by straps that slip between their big toe and the one next to it. Real Japanese stockings are made a little like gloves. There is a special place for the big toe. The rest of them slide into the same compartment. You should have heard the little girls read at the top of their voices. They stand up and hold their books a little higher than their noses."

FOR HUSBANDS ONLY

An awfully good book for any wife to buy any husband as a birthday present would be "My Wife, Poor Wretch", by Emma Beatrice Brunner, being Mrs. Peppy's side of the story herself and married life which her husband told the world in his "what every woman knows about famous diaries. It's one of these coy men and marriage" books; it might be good policy to give the males an occasional dose of what you know.

NUN IS ACCUSED OF INSTIGATING OBREGON MURDER

Assassin Admits That He Got "Fortitude"
from Sister

Mexico City, July 31.—(AP)—Police in a formal statement assert that a Catholic nun, Concepcion Acero de La Lata, and a man named Manuel Trejo fostered a belief in the mind of Jose De Leon Toral that he could solve the religious problems of Mexico by slaying General Alvaro Obregon. Toral claims that he alone was responsible, although he said the police statement was correct. The statement continued:

"During this time Toral also was with the priest Jose Jimenez. 'Toral also went to the home of the nun Sister Concepcion 'where he received mental fortitude from her.' The statement added that the nun 'admits she might have told Toral the religious difficulties would end with the deaths of Calles, Obregon and Patriarch Perez, head of the so-called Mexican Schismatic Catholic church.'

After the police statement had been read to thirty Mexican and foreign newspapermen, Toral answered their questions in the office of the Chief of Police General Rios Zertuche. He was pallid and hollow cheeked but physically sound and according to his own statement 'perfectly sane.'

"I have no defense and will make no defense in my trial," the assassin said. "The killing of Obregon was a good deed. I expect to go to heaven. I think Obregon will be saved too, he was fundamentally a good man. 'I expect to die for killing Obregon. I give my life for his. 'The religious question, the religious question only, absolutely nothing else caused me to kill Obregon, because I consider him intellectually responsible for the Mexican government's religious policy and everything else in Mexico.'

"Toral disliked the idea of the bomb attack upon Obregon last November. But afterwards he began to believe that the killing of Obregon could bring about the solution of the religious question, although Toral had not then selected himself to be the man to kill Obregon.

"The nun Concepcion said in the presence of Toral that the difficulties of the Catholics could be solved by the deaths of President Calles, Obregon and the Patriarch at the head of the so-called Schismatic Mexican Catholic church which denies the authority of the Pope at Rome.

"Eight days before Obregon arrived in Mexico City, Toral had determined to kill Obregon because Toral had become convinced that the November bomb attempt against Obregon had been justified.

"Toral was acquainted with a man named Manuel Trejo. Trejo was one of those who caused the explosion of bombs in the Chamber of Deputies last May. Toral knew this. Toral met Trejo at the house of a woman named Maria Luisa Pera Altamira. 'Trejo loaned Toral the pistol that he killed Obregon with. Trejo also gave Toral eighteen cartridges and taught Toral how to use the pistol.

"Toral practiced with this pistol in a canyon behind the Church of Guadalupe (the shrine of Mexico's patron saint, near Mexico City). From Sunday until the following Tuesday, when he assassinated Obregon, Toral hung around the Obregon headquarters, his victim's home and other places where he hoped to find the President-elect.

The police statement asserted that during this time Toral was Trejo at the residence of a Catholic woman which was "a rendezvous for Toral, Trejo and the Catholic nuns who are detained at present." The statement continued:

"Toral also went to the home of the nun Sister Concepcion 'where he received mental fortitude from her.' The statement added that the nun 'admits she might have told Toral the religious difficulties would end with the deaths of Calles, Obregon and Patriarch Perez, head of the so-called Mexican Schismatic Catholic church.'

To those students who must work, the deans offer these requisites for every working student:

Thompson to Make His Position Known

Chicago, July 31.—(AP)—Mayor Thompson whose Republican faction opposed virtually all the successful republican nominees in the April primaries will make known his views on support of the Republican ticket, national, state and county, in a letter to be read at a meeting of the county central committee Thursday. Bernard Snow, vice-chairman of the committee, announced today.

Mr. Snow, a close political advisor of the mayor, indicated that Mayor Thompson expected to advise support of the entire Republican slate from Herbert Hoover for President down to the smallest county office.

"We are for the entire Republican ticket from Hoover down to municipal court judges," Snow said. "We made our preliminary choice but now we are with the winners."

Thompson favored drafting President Coolidge for re-nomination and opposed Louis I. Zimmerman for Governor, Otis Glenn for Senator, Judge John A. Swanson for State's Attorney and many more who were nominated when the Small-Thompson-Crowe faction went down to defeat.

DETAILS FRANCO BRITISH COMPACT ARE MADE PUBLIC

The Plan is to be Given to United States Government

London, July 31.—(AP)—Details of a Franco-British naval compromise mentioned by Sir Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary, in the House of Commons yesterday, are stated to have been cabled to the British Ambassador at Washington where they are expected to be presented today or tomorrow.

A government spokesman told The Associated Press today that a compromise had been reached between the two methods of naval armament reduction on which previous conferences have split, namely limitation by total tonnage favored by

France, and by categories, favored by Great Britain.

(Under the total of global tonnage system no restriction is placed upon the types of vessel to be included under the total tonnage allotted to any country while under the category system the total tonnage of the various types of war vessels is agreed upon.)

The question of submarine construction is definitely involved in the compromise, the spokesman said. In the event that the United States and other nations accept the compromise, another meeting of the preparatory commission on disarmament of the League of Nations will be called to consider the next step.

In the event that the United States and other nations reject the compromise, a meeting will be called to consider modifications of it. The compromise will not become effective until the major powers accede to it.

The government spokesman carefully explained that the naval compromise in no sense is an agreement as to definite reductions. It is essentially a "formula of principles" on which reductions can be made.

By NEA Service
Evansville, Ind.—The limbo of the has-beens—the palooka shows—brought together here recently two of the one-time stars of the squared circle when Jack Johnson and Marvin Hart, each a world's heavyweight champion in his day, met.
Johnson, now 50 years old, was barnstorming, taking on all comers, and Hart was the referee of the show.
It was the first time the two fighters had met in 23 years. Their previous meeting was in the ring when Hart gained a decision over Johnson in San Francisco.

Cradle of Skytoucher

No, this isn't an attempt to introduce cliff-dweller architecture in New York. It's the 75-foot hotel that workers have drilled in solid rock for the foundation of the Hotel New Yorker, which will be the tallest of the skyscraper hotels and will cost $22,000,000. The equivalent of five stories below the street must be excavated before it is possible to build 43 stories above the street. Workers must take out more than 2,200,000 cubic feet of rock.

ANNUAL OUTING OF SNAIX HELD AT CAMP GRANT

Local Veterans of the War With Spain Attended Big Picnic

Between 150 and 200 people enjoyed the annual picnic of the Military Order of Serpents, affiliated with the United Spanish War Veterans Sunday at the Kilbuck forest preserve near Camp Grant, Rockford. A picnic dinner was enjoyed at noon and an informal program and games filled the afternoon. Impromptu reunions of comrades of 1898 were among the most enjoyable features of the gathering.

Among officers and past officers of the Spanish war organizations present were Brigadier General John J. Garrity of Chicago, commander-in-chief of the United Spanish War Veterans; Past Grand Gugu Morgan and his wrecking crew, from Chicago; Department Senior Vice Commander Michael Kelley of the U. S. W. V. of Chicago; Arthur Hufon of Chicago, department quartermaster of the U. S. W. V.; Walter Taylor of Chicago, one of the supreme officers of the Snaix; Mrs. Violet King of Rockford, past president general of the Spanish War auxiliary, and Past Department Commander Fred E. Brown of Sterling.

General Garrity, who is with the Thirty-third division at Camp Grant was the guest of honor at the picnic dinner. The picnickers brought well filled baskets and the Rockford committee supplied coffee, lemonade and ice cream for everybody. After dinner General Garrity gave a stirring talk, reviewing the general conditions of military life during the Spanish war and the World war and drawing a lesson on preparedness from the suffering endured by the Spanish war soldiers due to lack of preparedness and the delay in the ending of the World war caused by the extended time it took to train men and prepare supplies for the A. E. F.

There were members of the order present from Chicago, Rockford, Oak Park, Rochelle, Streator, Freeport, Dixon, Sterling-Rock Falls and other places. No business meeting was held, the annual picnic being a social get-together occasion only.

The Snaix and their guests had a very enjoyable time and it was late in the afternoon before they began leaving for their homes.

LOVE FOR TWO RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 By NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED BERTIE LOU WARD marries ROD BRYER, who had previously been engaged to LILA MARSH. The latter amuses herself by telling their friends that she was Rod's first love, and continues to make life miserable for the bride by coming to New York as a guest of MOLLY FRASER, whose husband had given Rod a position.

However, Lila meets a rich Mr. LOREE and marries him. Then she asks Bertie Lou to forgive the past and be friends.

Trying to keep up socially with their wealthy friends plunges the Bryers in debt and Rod becomes depressed. Lila seizes her chance to persuade him to accept a higher salary from Loree, promising security from financial worry "for Bertie Lou's sake."

Shortly after, Lila asks Rod to put some of her jewels in the office vault during her husband's absence. When he returns the case the jewels are gone. He wants to notify the police but she points out that this would be a confession against him might spoil his career. They decide to keep the matter secret—even from Bertie Lou—and Rod promises to pay for the loss as he is able to save the money.

Bertie Lou finds out that Rod has deceived her twice regarding engagements with Lila and is heartbroken. She telegrams her to her sick mother and she leaves without seeing Rod.

Lila prevails on him to spend the week-end with them in the country to keep from being lonely, and, under pretense of sympathy, plants seeds of doubt in his mind about Bertie Lou.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVIII

A SURGE of hate spread itself over Lila's features, contorting them into a fleeting ugliness. She turned her head quickly away from Rod's stare.

But even in the moonlight her expression had been an unmistakable indication of displeasure. Rod could not see clearly enough to recognize it as anything more than that. But it was sufficient to trouble him.

Thinking it over that night, he concluded that Lila had no love for Cyrus. He had come to believe that she had. But even with that revealing moment on the piazza to enlighten him he had not the faintest idea why she had been so much annoyed at her husband's demonstration of affection.

Lila, boiling with resentment over his intrusion upon her tete-a-tete with Rod, could have told him she could have explained that Cyrus had spoiled the moment she had been waiting for—the moment when Rod needed sympathy, the moment he seemed bewildered and doubtful of Bertie Lou's love.

For, despite his loyalty, Lila knew that he must be pondering over Bertie Lou's behavior. She had pondered over it, too, until she received a clue. In a conversation with Rod, on the subject of the detective she had engaged, she asked him if he had told Bertie Lou anything that could give her a hint of their secret. Rod said no, that he hadn't even told her he was at Lila's the afternoon he had returned the empty jewel case.

Lila remembered having told

Bertie Lou that he had just left her on that occasion. Casually she inquired of Rod how he had explained his lateness in arriving home and he said he believed he had lied about it.

"Well, the fat's in the fire with Bertie Lou," Lila told herself.

ABANDONING all hope of deceiving Bertie Lou any longer, she decided to make the most of her erstwhile friend's absence. When Bertie Lou returned—if she ever did—Lila knew that she would have little or no influence over her, no further opportunity to lead her into extravagance or things that Rod could criticize.

Perhaps Bertie Lou might induce Rod to give up his position with Cyrus. There Lila faced the possibility of losing him altogether unless she could complete her sorcery before his wife returned.

No need now to consider Bertie Lou's friendship. At last she could speak freely, could start to sow the seeds of discontent in Rod's mind.

She was furious with Cyrus for having interrupted her initial move and for having reminded Rod that she belonged to another man. But to Rod it seemed that he had gazed upon the secret travail of one who had made a ghastly mistake.

He pitied Lila. But he admired her tremendously for having kept her secret so well, for having lived so sportingly up to her bargain of exchanging her freedom for money. At least she had not whined. And if he had discovered what she had proudly hidden from the world it was purely by accident, he felt, and not by reason of any public display of yellow on Lila's part.

He thought of her unfeeling manifestation of affection and consideration for Cyrus, a man whom he knew she did not love, and compared it with Bertie Lou's treatment of him, whom he had believed she loved.

He observed Cyrus closely for the rest of his stay at The Birch. There was nothing in his manner to indicate that he suspected Lila's true feelings toward him. Rod asked himself if it were not possible that he too might be taking his wife's love for granted.

Was there any such thing as love? Was it love to keep a man calling his home every hour to inquire if there was a letter for him? And was it love that caused Bertie Lou to plunge him head over heels into debt—send him begging his father for a loan?

It looked very much like indifference and a shallow ambition, rather than love. Rod did not want to think so, but Lila had set her self to present Bertie Lou's character and conduct to him in this light. And so, so false in her method of putting her destructive efforts in the guise of friendly advice and sympathy was she that Rod found himself thinking Bertie Lou had revealed herself as selfish and unloving.

IT did not come suddenly, his verdict of her; but as the weeks wore on and she made no mention of returning to New York, Rod was compelled to believe that she did not mind being apart from him.

Then there was her cold letter when he had to refuse the money she asked for. Bertie Lou had hated writing for it, but she needed funds . . . she had used practically all her immediate cash for her fare home.

She did not want to appeal to her father for a loan since that would cause him to wonder why Rod did not supply her with money.

Rod had replied with half the amount and the statement that he had no more to send. Bertie Lou was amused. He must be spending money like water! Well, Lila's habits and tastes could account for that. For any man who aspired to an affair with her would soon find himself with a lean pocketbook, Bertie Lou believed.

Rod did not write for a week after receiving her sarcastic letter. During this period of waiting Bertie Lou had assured herself through a hideous night of alternating doubt and still faintly surviving faith that she did not care whether he ever wrote again or not.

For she had received a letter that fairly scorched her heart and seared her pride. It was a poisonous anonymity. But Bertie Lou thought she knew who had written it. The writing was very much like Molly's despite an apparent effort to disguise it.

It was brief. The writer merely suggested that Bertie Lou should return to Rod at once if she wished to get him out of the clutches of a certain bleached blond over whom he seemed to have lost his heart.

As the writer had guessed, Bertie Lou was too proud to take any notice of the communication. She did not return to New York. Her letters to Rod grew even colder and further apart and when he flatly demanded to know when she intended to return she replied that she thought she might spend the summer with her mother.

The letter had done its work. It kept Bertie Lou away from Rod, as it was designed to do. Not as long perhaps as Lila—for it was Lila who was the guilty person—hoping that it would. She had painstakingly copied Molly's handwriting with just enough fidelity to the original to make anyone who knew it believe that the letter came from her.

OTHER factors affected Bertie Lou. Inquisitiveness chafed. It drove her back to Rod. Inquisitiveness plus an aching yearning to see for herself if he really had succumbed to Lila's charms. Her friends in Wayville were beginning to comment upon her prolonged absence from her husband. They would soon be declaring that she had left him, Bertie Lou feared. And she hadn't left him. There had been no final break, no incontrovertible proof that Rod was unfaithful. Neither had he suggested a permanent separation. She spoke tentatively to her mother about returning to him and was convinced at once that she had been a cause for worry.

"Yes, I really think you should," her mother said; "though we shall miss you dreadfully."

Bertie Lou smiled over the relief in her mother's voice.

"I'm afraid Rod will be thinking we've kept you too long," Mrs. Ward went on happily. "The dear boy has been so very patient. It must have been terribly lonesome for him without you."

Mother and daughter glanced at each other and then both looked quickly away. Each was wondering how near or how far from the truth those words had been.

The mother never had accepted Lila's friendship with Bertie Lou as genuine, a thing to be trusted, though she had kept her opinion from her daughter lest she worry her needlessly. She could be mistaken, perhaps, she told herself.

Bertie Lou would not let her mother know what she thought of Rod's loneliness, though she suspected that her mother had wondered at her willingness to remain away from him all these weeks and months.

She had surprised her mother's gaze bent upon her in grave meditation on many occasions lately. It was time to return to Rod and settle the thing or to open her heart to her mother and load her burdens on those still frail shoulders.

Bertie Lou returned to New York unannounced. Her hands trembled on the doorknob as she let herself in, but she stubbornly refused to release the tears that smarted her eyes. Inside the front door she put down the small case she had carried and turned to admit the elevator boy with her suitcase.

When he was gone she summoned her maid, but there was no response. She went out to the kitchen and looked around. There was no food in the refrigerator. Rod must be eating out.

Further inspection of the apartment revealed that someone was taking care of it for there was cleanliness and order all around. A woman by the hour, Bertie Lou concluded.

It was too late now to think of preparing dinner in the apartment. Bertie Lou set about removing the marks of travel from her person and getting into a fresh costume. It was nice to be back in her comfortable, well-furnished home . . . but it was purely a physical pleasure.

There was no elation in her heart; merely a half-dread, half-eager feeling. She was excited, but not happy. For some reason, though, she put on a dress that Rod had liked.

She was in the living room when he entered the hall. She heard him open the door and walk toward their bedroom.

BY FRANK H. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer
Amsterdam, Holland, July 31.—(AP)—Young David George Brownlow Cecil, Lord Burghley, officer in His Britannic Majesty's crack regiment of guards, English country gentleman, Justice of the Peace and newly crowned Olympic 400 meter hurdle champion, would like to participate in the 1932 Olympic games at Los Angeles if "I'm not out of the running altogether."

So he told The Associated Press after he had defeated the American star, F. Morgan Taylor and Frank Cuhel in the 400 meter hurdle final yesterday.

"Nothing would please me better than to compete in America again although I have reasons for not revisiting the United States in the immediate future," he said.

One imagined that the principal reason for the titled athlete's reluctance to visit America was standing beside him at the time—a fair-haired young English girl, Lady Mary Scott, daughter of the Duke of Buccleugh, to whom Lord Burghley is engaged.

Yank Wrestlers Win.
Six Americans reached the final round in the catch as catch can wrestling competition today. Only in the lightweight—145 pound—division will the Stars and Stripes lack a color bearer.

In this division, Clarence Berryman of Oklahoma A. and M. was thrown in four minutes in the quarter-finals this morning by Kap of Estonia.

Aside from this set-back, the Americans advanced without interruption. In the final, to be held tonight, the six Americans will be pitted against two Finns, to Swiss and two Swedes.

Lloyd O. Appleton of Cornell College, Iowa won two matches today, defeating Praks of Estonia in the quarter final and Letchford of Canada in the semi-finals of the 158 pound class.

The other American survivors are: 123 pounds—Robert Hewitt, University of Michigan.
134.5 pounds—Allie R. Morrison, University of Illinois.
174 pound—Ralph W. Hammonds, Texas University.
191 pounds—H. L. Edwards, U. S. Naval Academy.

Heavyweight—Ed George, University of Michigan.
Douglas Lowe of Great Britain today won the 800 meters final, retaining his championship won in 1924. Among others he defeated the American star, Lloyd Hahn.

Lowe won by ten yards from By-eln of Sweden. Hahn led until the final turn when he wilted and was badly beaten.

Lowe's time in a beautifully run race in which he out-classed the field was 1 minute 51.4-5 seconds, breaking the Olympic record by 1-10 second.

Herman Englehard of Germany was third, Phil Edwards of Canada fourth, Hahn, fifth and Seraphin Martin of France sixth.

There were nine starters, Hahn jumping to the front at the first turn and making the pace, closely pursued by Lowe and Edwards. They kept in that order with the other Americans, Earl Fuller and Ray Watson, bringing up the rear until the turn into the home stretch where Lowe shot out and ran away from his rivals as though they were standing still.

Hahn Faded Badly
Hahn had not the least sort of a spring with which to match Lowe's spurt and faded badly as three others passed him. Behind Martin, the world's record holder, who was sixth came his countryman, Keller, with the two Americans last.

The record broken by Lowe's great run had stood since the Olympic games at Stockholm in 1912 when it was set at 1:51.9-10 by Ted Meredith. The pace was even faster than when the Englishman won at Paris in 1924, his time then having been 1:52-2-5.

Elizabeth Robinson of the United States won the 100 meter final for women.

Miss Robinson, Chicago girl representing the Illinois Women's A. C., ran a beautiful race. She was up with the leaders all the way and had enough in reserve for a finishing spurt to beat out Fanny Rosenfeld and Ethel Smith, two Canadians, who were second and third. Miss Robinson's time was 12-1-5 seconds.

A German girl, E. Steinberg, finished fourth and last in the exciting race. Myrtle Cook of Canada and Fraulein Schmidt of Germany were disqualified for false starting.

Elizabeth Robinson of the United States won the 100 meter final for women.

Miss Robinson, Chicago girl representing the Illinois Women's A. C., ran a beautiful race. She was up with the leaders all the way and had enough in reserve for a finishing spurt to beat out Fanny Rosenfeld and Ethel Smith, two Canadians, who were second and third. Miss Robinson's time was 12-1-5 seconds.

A German girl, E. Steinberg, finished fourth and last in the exciting race. Myrtle Cook of Canada and Fraulein Schmidt of Germany were disqualified for false starting.

Off on Long Trip for Series of Games With Leading College Nines of Japan

Carl Lundgren (center), former National League pitcher, who now coaches baseball at the University of Illinois, and N. J. Gundlach, right and Captain Richard G. Finn, left stars of the team Lundgren is taking to Japan for a series of games in August.

The longest journey ever taken by an athletic team of the University of Illinois is now on—a trip to Japan by the Illinois baseball team for a series of games against leading college teams of the flowery kingdom.

Coach Carl Lundgren, former National League star, is taking 15 Illinois players with him on the trip. The Illinois stars will leave San Francisco on Aug. 15, and are scheduled to arrive at Yokohama on Aug. 31. While in Japan, the Americans will be the guests of Keio University, sponsors of the invasion.

With the exception of Second Baseman Glade from Omaha, Neb., and Outfielder Walker of Ballard Vale, Mass., all members of the team making the trip are from Illinois.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit—Benny Valger, technically knocked out Sammy Morgan, New York, (7).

Chicago—Mike Waters, Ireland, outpointed Frankie LaRabee, Lincoln, Neb., (4). Sandy Garrison, Los Angeles, beat Tut Seymour, Biloxi, Miss., (4). Herslie Wilson, Danville, Ill., defeated Morrie Gransberg, Chicago (4).

Lancaster, Pa.—Jack Pontney, Baltimore, and Miget Fox, Conshohocken, drew (8); Battling Willard, Lancaster, defeated Jack Hanlon, Marietta, O., (8).

Louisville—Dixie La Hood, Butte, Mont., won over Nut Snyder, Dayton, O., (10).

Meanwhile at St. Louis the Athletics were trimming the Browns, 5 to 4, and registering their seventh straight victory. The Browns got 15 hits off Rommel and Walberg but couldn't translate them into runs.

Alphonse Thomas was the whole show as the Chicago White Sox downed the Washington Senators, 6 to 0.

The Boston Red Sox fell deeper into the cellar when the Detroit Tigers gave them another drubbing, 2 to 1 in a tight pitchers' battle between Ken Holloway and Ed Morris.

The National League standing underwent some drastic changes as the New York Giants replaced the Chicago Cubs in third place and the Pittsburgh Pirates ousted Brooklyn from fifth. The two leaders, the St. Louis Cardinals and the Cincinnati Reds, held their relative positions, however, for both picked the same day to lose.

Jim Faulkner held the Cubs to four hits and the Giants, aided by home runs by Hogan and Ott, crashed through to a 4 to 1 triumph.

The Pirates advanced to fifth place by trimming the Boston Braves in both ends of a double header, 2 to 1, and 6 to 5, in 10 innings.

The Phils required 16 innings and four hours to subdue the Cardinals, 8 to 7. Fred Leach crossing the plate with the winning run on a single by Virgil Davis, Cardinal cast-off.

Left handers held the stage at Brooklyn where Jess Petty shaded Eppa Rixey and gave the Robins a 2 to 1 verdict over the Reds.

YANKEE TENNIS PLAYERS LEAVE MID ADMIRATION

French Tennis World Pays Tribute to Tilden & Co.

Paris, July 31.—(AP)—The American Davis Cup team sails homeward on the steamship Paris tomorrow without the Davis Cup but they carry with them the respect and admiration of French tennis fans for the gallant and sporting battle they put up against the three defending French musketeers—Henri Cochet, Rene Lacoste and Jean Borotra.

Big Bill Tilden, the leading American ace and ace producer, never was so popular in France in downright victory as he is now in 50-50 defeat.

His straight set defeat at the hands of Cochet yesterday will remain in French fans' memory for years to come as one of the greatest court battles in tennis history. It was Big Bill's first straight set beating in his nine years of Davis Cup play, but he put up as gallant a battle as he did in his victory over Lacoste in his first singles match on Friday.

The picture of Tilden and Cochet, after their bitter battle, shaking hands and congratulating one another, seemed like the signing of a Franco-American peace pact.

Accepts Invitation to Sign Kellogg Pact

London, July 31.—(AP)—Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, has accepted an invitation from the French government for the signing of the Kellogg outlawry of war pact in Paris on August 27.

The invitation has been forwarded to the Dominion governments.

Jaundice

By Edmund Andrews, M. D., Chicago Associated Professor of Surgery University of Illinois College of Medicine

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. President Coolidge is the honorary president of the Gorgas Memorial, which has its headquarters at 400 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago.)

Jaundice is a yellowish brown discoloration of the skin. It is caused by the failure of the liver to eliminate certain coloring matters. The substances which give color to the blood cells are carried in the red blood cells. The life of these cells is but a few days or weeks. New ones are constantly being born in the bone marrow and when the old ones die they are destroyed in the liver and their coloring matter passes into the bile. For that reason any failure of the liver to carry out its function will cause a damming back of these pigments in the blood and a staining of the skin, lips and eyes.

Various diseases of the liver itself may under certain circumstances cause jaundice but the most common cause is disease of the bile ducts. The bile is made in the liver and constantly flows through the ducts into the intestines and blockage of these ducts is the commonest cause of jaundice.

Jaundice, from whatever cause, is a serious disease. While the coloring matter itself is harmless, the mere fact that it is being dammed back means that other more poisonous products are being dammed back also.

The symptoms of this poisoning are many—extreme intolerable itching of the skin is one of the most prominent, the blood pressure becomes slower, the patient is weak and readily loses weight, and above all there is very severe inflammation of the kidneys which, if allowed to persist, will be fatal.

Another serious feature of jaundice is that the bile is needed in the intestines, as it contains important digestive ferments, and lack of it brings about an inability to digest the food properly, so that it tends to pass through the body undigested. This is essentially true of fats which appear in the stools in large amounts in jaundice.
